WEDDINGS.

London, Sept. 2 .- The marriage of Miss Mary Lincoln, eldest daughter of the United States Minister, Robert T. Lincoln, to Charles B. Isham, of Chreago, took place at 2:30 p. m. to-day at the Brompton Church. This is a quaint old edificaproached from the Brompton Road by a long walk through an old graveyard full of time-blackened monuments to the dead, and is only a few minutes' drive from the residence of the United States Minister. The chancel of the church was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants. At the hour fixed Archdencon Farrar, of West minster, preceded by the parish clergymen and the boy choristers in white surplices, came out from the vestry, and, as the old church resounded with the pealing wedding music, the procession marched owly down the aisle and upon the church steps awaiting the coming of the bride. Miss Lincoln drove up to the church gates with her father, and, leaning upon his arm, was received at the church door by the Archdescon, who then headed the choristers and led the procession up to the a'tar. There the bridegroom, attended by Major James C. Post, Military Attache of the United States Legation, was in waiting. The bride wore a white satin gown and a beautiful lace veil, and upon her neck sparkled a splendid diamond necklace, the gift of the groom. In her left hand she carried a handsome ivory-covered prayerbook. Mrs. Lincoln and her younger daughter, Miss Jessie Lincoln, accompanied by a number of friends and relatives of both the Isham and Lincoln families, had previously arrived.

After the wedding ceremony the bridegroom, at a sign from the Archdeacon, led the bride to the foot of the altar, where they knelt in prayer, while the choristers sang another hymn. The newly married couple were then conducted to the vestry, where the wedding party, the members of the families of both contract ing parties who were present, signed the marriage register, as did Henry White, First Secretary of the United States Legation; General John C. New, United States Consul-General; Major James C. Post, United States Military Attache; Lieutenant Emory, United States Naval Attache; and Edward 1-ham, of Chicago.

After leaving the church, the wedding party and a few intimate friends of the newly married couple were driven to the residence of the United States Minister, in Cromwell Gardens, where they breakfasted. Among those present were General and Mrs. John C. New and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Isham, Miss Harriet Isham, Mr. and Miss McCagg, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field, Archie Pisher, of Chicago; Lleutenant and Mrs. Emory, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, Senator I ligitias, General Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Sartoris, Mrs. Morse and Captain Pavy and wife. The weedling presents were numerous and handsone and were accompanied by many messages of corgratulation from prominent people. Shortly after the weedling breakfast, at about 5 p. m., Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Isham left London on a short weedling tour, after which they will go to the United States.

AN INTERESTED AUDIENCE AT TWILIGHT PARK. Twilight Park, Haines Falls, N. Y., Sept. 2 (Special).

-In the picturesque Catskills, on the slopes of High Peak, commanding a noble view of mountains and valleys famous as the haufts of Rip Van Winkle, is Twilight Park. The forty or more pretty cottages and the two unique club-houses which comprise this novel settlement are peopled with as generous and liberalhearted a set of residents as are to be found anywhere in this country. They have this senson shown their interest in and appreciation of The Tribune Fresh-Air Fund's noble work by giving two entertainments, the proceeds of which have gone for this charity. From the first benefit $170 was sent. Last evening the pretty Casino was filled by an appreciative audience who listened with close attention to a lecture on the "Fassion Play at Oberammergau," delivered in a very interesting manner by the Rev. F. H. Payson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rahway, N. J., an eye-witness of two performances of the wonderfu The lecture was illustrated by a set of stereopticon views which W. H. Conghlin, of Brooklyn, well known as the Twilight Park artist, kindly At the close of the lecture an appropriate colo, "The Resurrection," was touchingly rendered by P. F. Steele, the baritone of the choir of the Church of Our Father, Brooklyn. The proceeds of the entertainment, $42, will go to swell the Fresh-Air Fund's treasury, making a total of $212 sent this stason by the cottagers of Twilight Park, enough to give over sevenly poor little waifs a two weeks' outing in the country.

GOOD MUSIC AT BRIGHTON BEACH. Lovers of good music who visit Brighton Beach this week are hearing some fine programmes. The season is near its close, as the final concerts by the ceidl orchestra will take place next Monday afternoon and evening. Last evening the last Wagner concert was given, the feature being a "Siegfried Snite" specially arranged by Mr. Seidl. This comprised the forging of the sword, the killing of the dragon and the awakening of Bruenhilde, from "Siegfried," and the Rhine journey and funeral march from "Die Goetter-daemmerung." Mr. Seidl conducted with great spirit, Each number was enthusiastically received, the leader being compelled to come forward and respond to the hearty applicuse bestowed upon him.

Herr Fischer's singing, under the auspices of the Seldl Society, attracted a numerous audience on Tues-day evening, and to-night, when he will be heard again, the attendance will doubtless again be large. Herr Fischer's name was on the programme for Tuesday twice, but he sang five times. His first selection was the aria from "The Magic Flute"; in response to an enthusiastic recall he sang "It was a Dream," by Lassen. After singing "The Wanderer," by Schubert, Herr Fischer gave as an encore "The Angel," by Graben Hoffman, which the audience liked so well that they insisted on its repetition. His selections for this evening will be:

SHE GOES DOWN THE BAY TO MEET HER DAUGHTER.

HER SON'S WIFE ALSO THE VED-THE TWO kneel

TRAVELLERS LOWERED DOWN THE SHIPPS SIDE.

The President's doughter, Mrs. McKee, and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, arrived here yesterday. Mrs. Harrison, who had come on from Cape May to meet her daughter and daughter-inlaw, was taken down the Pay on the revenue steamer Grant, which left West Twenty-third-st. at 7 a. m. Mrs. Harrison was escorted by her son, Russell B. Harrison, and accompanied by J. R. McKee, Mrs. Dimmick, Licutenant Cowies, of the Navy: T. A. H. Hoey and George W. Loyd. A heavy for hung over the Bay when the Grant stenmed down through the Narrows and she passed the Majestle below the forts without seeing her. The whistles of the big steamer were heard, however, and the Grunt put back to Quarantine, reaching there just as the Majestic was coming to anchor. The steamer saluted the cutter by dipping her ensign and blowing her whistle. Owing to the Grant being square-rigged forward, it was impossible for her to get alongside the Majestic, so she lay a little way out from the big ship, and the captain's gig was sent off to the cutter Chandler, which was alongside the both political parties, who uniformly desire to advance steamer. Meantime greetings had been waved between Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Russell B. Harrison and the party on the Grant. Now came the problem of classes of work and to secure for that work a market. transferring Mrs. McKee and Mrs. Russell B. Harrison Before coming here, Lady Aberdeen went to Dublio, from the high decks of the steamer to the Chandler, so that they could take the gig for the Grant. But Captain Parsell, of the Majestic, was equal to the in Chicago. emergency, and soon had a chair rigged to a boat's descent first and was followed by Mrs. Russell B. Harrison. Mrs. Harrison had come over to the Chandler in the Grant's gig, and greeted her daughter and daughter-in-law as they alighted from their flight daughter-in-law then went aboard the Grant, which steamed up to West Twenty-third-st.

Russell B. Harrison said yesterday concerning the trip down the bay: "Of course we did not save much time by going down the bay, but it gave great satisfaction to my mother to meet them as soon as we did. All of the baguage was left in the stateroom on board of the Majestic. After we got our break fast at the Glisey Mr. and Mrs. McKee and my wife examined, and if Mrs. Saunders, my wife's mother, had been here we should have started at 1 p.m. for Cape May. Mrs. Saunders is expected to arrive to-day and we shall not lose any time in getting away. The travellers are quite fatigued. The voyage was not very pleasant. They were in a gale for two days; besides this morning they arose unusually early. I judge from what they have said about their trip that they enjoyed it hugely. They travelled alone, and although it was their first trip to Europe, they got along with out any difficulty. They went from London to Paris and Vienna, and then to the Black Forest. In one of the quaint little inns that are found in the Black a creat surprise to them all. They brought back some Forest they met, by accident, Mrs. Morton. It was osities, but I do not think they loaded themselves down with anything but novelties. At any rate," Mr. Harrison added, "there was no difficulty about the examination of their baggage by the custom house officials." J. R. McKee, who came on from Boston to meet Mrs. McKee, said that he hoped to have Mrs. Harrison soon visit her daughter in Boston. "At present," he said, "I have no quarters to speak of, but I am thinking of going to Brookline to live. That is the wealthiest town in the country and I want to lower its standard if I can," he humorously added. "It is probable Mrs. Harrison will go to Boston in the course of a week or ten days. The Precident's household breaks up at Cape May next week. Mrs. McKee will have a good deal to do to get ready to go to Boston, and probably she and Mrs. Harrison will start about the same time. I will go with them to Cape May, but shall go back to Boston after Labor Day. I am in the mining depastment of the Thomson-Houston Electric Light Company, in Lynn, and am kept pretty busy. We have over 2,800 men working there."

The County Council is exceedingly strict in its requirements. and it was only a few weeks ago that the plans were finally approved.

A short time before Marcus Mayer, Miss Huntington's manager, left England, Mr. Edwardes, it is reported, asked that instead of the guarantee of a seven yearlease previously agreed on, Miss Huntington's friends should advance him £35,000 as a loan, on 4 per cent interest, for the completion of the building. They declined these terms, but offered a loan of £25,000 at 4 1-2 per cent. As neither side would accept the other's terms the whole arrangement had to be given up. It is still declared that Miss Huntington is soon have a theatre of her own in London. Her friends are ready to advance the capital and a site is already name din Lelcester Square, on the side opposite the Empire Theatre. The theatre is to have a frontage greater than that of the Empire. This arrangemen will place the Alhambra between the new theatre and the Empire, while the one that Mr. Edwardes is now building is only a short distance away in Cranbourn-st Miss Huntington is now on her way to this country.

NOTES OF THE STAGE.

Miss Rose Coghlan's first Thursday matinee of Dorothy's Dilemma" will be given at the New Park Theatre this afternoon. The play has been drawing good houses, and the friends of this favorite actress have found new grounds for admiration. Miss Coghlan's engagement here lasts only one week after the present.

There will be a "donkey matince" at the Casino on aturday of next week. This does not mean a matinee set apart for the attendance of donkeys, but a natince when a handsome prize will be given to the how or girl under eight years old who shall draw the best picture of a donkey. All the pictures must be sent to Eudolph Aronson, at the Casino, on or before september 11, the day previous to the "donkey mati-nee," when the prize will be awarded.

The Kaiser Wilhelm, which is expected to arrive Saturday, has on board among its other passenger Xaver Scharwenka and his brother Philip. Emil Gramm and a number of well-known musicians are to meet them and give them a hearty welcome. Miss Marie Tempest is on the same ship.

The season of the Thalla Theatre will begin to forrow night with the Liliputians in "The Pupil in Last night the Lilliputians occupied two boxes at Palmer's Theatre and heard "The Tar and the Tartar." The run of "The Tar and the Tartar" will end on Saturday night, when souvenirs of the last performance will be given.

The Academy of Music will open this evening with "The Soudan," in which Louis James is to play the leading part.

SALVATION ARMY PEOPLE MEET.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Salvation Army as held last night at Association Hall, Twenty-third-st. and Fourth-ave. It was a meeting of all the different battallous and companies within a radius of fifty miles of New-York City. The hall was uncomfortably crowded. There were 2.500 people in the hall, and as many more vero turned away. Although there were members from branches of the army for miles around New-York sitting in the audience and on the platform, still they were in a small minority compared to the rest of the copie present. The meeting was not as the popular conception would have it. It was enthusiastic to a high degree, but none of the features supposed to be frequent and paculiar to the Salvation Army meetings was pre-

LORD AND LADY ABERDEEN HERE.

THEY ARE INTERESTED IN THE WORLD'S FAIR. Among the passengers on the White Star steamer yesterday on the steamship Majestic from Liverpool.

The Majestic was sighted off Fire Island at 6 o'clock and Countess of Aberdeen and their little daughter, Lady Marjorie. They went to the Plaza Hotel, where they will remain for a few days. Lady Aberdeen's health has not been good recently, and she hopes to recuperate during her stay in this country. While re, however, Lady Aberdeen will take the opportunity to make arrangements for an exhibit of Irish home industries, in the form of lace manufacturing, and homespun clothing, together with the famous Irish linen. She proposes to place this exhibit in the woman's section of the coming World's Fair at Chicago.

About five years ago Lady Aberdeen founded the Irish Industrial Association, with offices in Dublin and London. She is president of the association, which has among its patrons the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin, Lord Plünket, Archbishop Walsh, B. C.; Mr. sexton, M. P.; Colonel Sanderson, M. P.; Countess Spencer and the Marchioness of Londonderry. The association is non-political. Its executive committee, with headquarters in Dublin, is composed of members of the cause for which the association was founded, viz., to make known the aptitude of the Irish people for certain where she had a conference with the Executive Committee with reference to an exhibit at the World's Fair

The Earl and his family will spend a few quiet days daylts. On this chair the ladies were safely lowered in New-York. Then they will go by easy singes to to the deck of the Chandler. Mrs. McKee made the Montreal. From there they will go by way of the Canadian Pacific Railway to a little farm in British Columbia, a few hundred miles east of Vancouver, which the Earl recently purchased. There they will in the chair. Mrs. Harrison and her daughter and time to spend a few days in Chicago the latter part of Nevember. Here they hope to meet Mrs. Potter Palmer and others connected with the World's Fatr. Concerning this proposed exhibit, the Earl of Aberdeen said last night:

"The manufacture of lace and homespun clothing in Ireland is extensively carried on and with extraordinary skill. Lace is largely made at the various and myself went back to the Majestic. The baggage was Ireland for the sale of these articles. We think the proposed exhibit at Chicago will materially aid us in labor and capital are not identical, but they need not lable benefit to the poor people of Ireland."

The Earl if Aberdeen succeeded Lord Carnarvon toy of Ireland in 1886. He was appointed by Mr. Gladstone, then Premier. Lord Londonderry succeeded him. This is his third visit to America. In 1887 he passed through New-York from the West on list way home to England. Last year he visited this country and Canada. peaking of his voyage on the Majestic, he said:

"One of the pleasantest features was the opportunity it gave me to make the acquaintance of some very charming American people, among them Mrs. Russell B. Harrison, Mrs. McKee and Senator Cullom."

MISS MABEL HUNT'S ENGAGEMENT.

TO MARRY HORATIO N. SLATER, THE WEALTHY COTTON SPINNER.

A story was yesterday published about the supposed engagement of two sisters to a father and s The high social standing of the persons named, no less than the complication of family relations which was likely to arise, caused much speculation among that part of fashionable society now in New-York. The story said that Horatio N. Slater, the millionaire cottonspinner of Webster, Mass., was about to marry Miss Mabel, the younger daughter of the late William Morris Hunt, the artist, and niece of Richard M. Hunt, the architect, and that Mr. Slater's eldest son, Samuel, was to marry Miss Enid, the elder sister of Miss Mabel It was said that the two marriages would in Hunt. all probability take place a Mirrentop at the same line and that the ceremony would be performed by Bishop Doane. Mr. Hunt yesterday received a letter from Sharon, where the Misses Hunt are now staying, briefly armonneing the engagement of Miss Mabel Hunt to Horatio N. Slater, but saying nothing about the second engagement. "There is no truth whatever, so far as I know," said Mr. Hunt to a Tribune reporter, "In the story of my niece Enid's engagement to Samuel Slater. If such a thing had happened I should be the first person to hear of it. I am able to confirm the story of Miss Mabel's engagement and that is all I know about it. Of the arrangements for the marriage

Mr. Slater, senior, is said to be about sixty years ild, while his premised bride is twenty. He is a descendant of Samuel Slater, who introduced cotton spinning into America. More than a century ago the family settled in Providence, R. I., and for three generations the business has been carried on with in-creased prosperity. Mr. Slater's father was the fifth son of Samuel Slater. During the present century the son of Sommel Stater. During the present century and wealth of the family has increased greatly, so that Mr. Slater's fortune is now estimated at several millions. He is a widedwer, his first wife having deal about six years ago.

Our object is to create a market outside of on "Practical Suggestions on Labor Organization." Mr. Hotchkiss said, in substance: "The interests of doing this. If we succeed, it will work an incalcu- and should not conflict. Each is essential to the other, and justly entitled to its fair share of the benefits which they jointly produce. The laborer has found that he cannot stand alone in the mc n industrial struggle. Mechanical invention and immigra tion have encroached upon his opportunities for recency in the only way open to him. Labor organiza tion is the natural and necessary outgrowth of conditions for the existence of which he is not responsible. It aims to unite the mass of workers and advance their common interests. If this aim could be fully realized, the responsible use of the vast power of such organization might prove a serious danger to society. This danger, however, is not likely to be realized."

Mr. Hotchkiss, in speaking of the movement for wanted, but lacked discrimination in the use of their town, N. C. power. Capital, which did not understand the real in 1889 he son for the movement, regarded it as a dangerous ence, and was quick to take advantage of its mistakes to array the forces of society against it. speaker next referred to the attitude of employers toward labor organization down to a recent period, and for the funeralfortunately, the prevailing assumption that organized labor has no right to any voice which the employer is bound to respect in the adjustment of wages, and other conditions vitally affecting the laborer, is giving place to more just and reasonable views. The superior ndvantages which wealth, education, and communiting business and social relations confer on employers should be used to supplement the honest efforts of the less favored working class in seeking equitable adjustment of difficulties for the existence of which neither is responsible. The dissatisfaction of the laboring man with his present limitations is one of the hopeful signs of progress. The fact that the working people of America are stirred with ambition for solid advancement in life is cause for profound satisfaction. Labor organizations have contributed largely to the public good in this country, and Europe is awakening and festering the manly ambition of the working people.

Mr. Hotchkiss next touched upon the various kinds of labor organizations and their objects. He said that their greatest efforts have been expended upon questions affecting wages. In this field, which appeals directly to their pressing needs, as well as to their selfish instincts, their intelligent leaders have found the greatest difficulty in convincing the rank and file that wages cannot be permanently increased on a fallling market, and that the organization which is designed of difficulties for the existence of which neither is rethat wages cannot be permanently increased on a falling market, and that the organization which is designed to help the laboring man to obtain justice can be legitimately used only under proper conditions to secure a just advance or to prevent or retard an improper decrease, and that permanent success can be obtained by the union or by the laborer personally only from a course that will promote the mutual good of employer and employed. The use of the strike, boycott and biacklist has fallen into discepute, but they are by no means obsolete. In conclusion, Mr.
Hotchkiss said: "The contest between capital and labor is by no means ended, but the time must come when each will have learned that its interests can in no way be served by hostile relations. Improved conditions will not come through sudden revolution, but through the slower processes of evolution."

ABOUT CLOSING THE FAIR ON SUNDAY,

COMMISSIONERS TO HEAR A MEMORIAL FROM THE SABBATH UNION TO-DAY.

Chicago, Sept. 2.-The National Columbian Comalssion met in the City Council Chamber at noon. A ommunication from the General Secretary of the American Sabbath Union, asking a hearing for a delegation from that body on the subject of closing the Exposition on Sunday, was rend. Commissioner Mercer, of Wyoming, moved that the communication be laid on the talle, but his resolution was voted down. Finally it was voted to appoint a committee of three to confer with the Sabbath Union delegation, and to fix an hour in to-morrow's session at which 'he Commission would hear their memorial.

which includes in its ranks communicants from all sects and denominations in the United States. The union has taken a decided stand against the Exposition's being opened on sunday, and to-day's meeting was held to present to the National Commission a formal protest against what the union considers an unwarrantable and unnecessary descration of Sunday.

The delegation which thus met included men from many different churches, some of whom do not wear the parade was fully one mile long and was viewed by 12,000 people. The grand stand was in Main-st., and stretched from Occan-ave. to Pine-st.

In the afternoon the tournament took place, and the Sandays as on week days. Some, like Dr. Sankey, as lock and key could make them. Others like Dr. moral grounds, but would listen to a proposition to open the doors on Sunday if it was agreed to allow no machinery in operation, no traffic, and no buying or selling.

Bishop Newman called the meeting to order and he them named E. F. Shepard for chairman.

The Rev. J. P. Mills was chosen secretary. The chairman stated briefly the object of the meeting, which was to arrange for a conference between the Columbian Exposition Commissioners and the delegates as to the question of closing the Fair on Sandays. Sundays.

The National Board of Ludy Managers of the Columbian Exposition met this morning to elect a secretary. It was supposed that there would be something of a struggle to replace Miss Phoebe Consins in that office, but, without opposition to speak of, Mrs. Susan Gale Cooke, who had been occupying the pince since Miss Consins was deposed, was duly chosen.

Mrs. Paimer, the president, then presented her report. She also reviewed her European trip and its results.

A CENTRAL PASSENGER STATION ASSURED. Chicago, Sept. 2 (Special).—A new central passenger station at the foot of Lakest in time for the World's Fair is now assured. President H. B. Ledyard, of the Michigan Central, Chief Engineer Hawks and General Superintendent Miller spent the entire day yesterday in conference with Illinois Central officials over the plans of the proposed structure. Before President Ledyard left here for the East last evening a definite understanding had been reached, and work will be begun just as soon as the rough draft of the plans decided on can be reduced to proper form. The building to be put up will cost some $500,000. It will not be as claborate as was at one time proposed. The Illinois Central still clings to the idea that it will ultimately Central still clings to the idea that it will not abandon that hope, at Madison sts., and it will not abandon that hope, at Madison sts., and it will not abandon that hope, at slightly excessive humidity, prevailed yesterday.
